Thaddeus Stevens.

From the Lancaster Express

A correspondent of the Pittsburgh Commercial in Tuesday's issue takes strong ground in favor of the 'Old Commoner' for the United States Senate The writer says that among all the names mentioned the one name that stands prominent above all others is the name of Thaddeus Stevens' The writer then speaks of Mr Stevens' long devotion to the interests of Pennsylvania and then, upon the great national issues of the day, he says that 'it is hardly necessary to speak further than to say that his election to the United States Senate would be a rebuke to 'My Policy' that could not fail to have a healthful influence on the minds of the Southern people They would know that Pennsylvania is in earnest—and that she demands that reconstruction and readmission must be founded on justice" The writer further says that he believes that Mr Stevens is the choice of a very large majority of the Union Republican party of Allegheny county and that 'with the aid of Lancaster, Allegheny could almost demand the nomination of Mr Stevens The article concludes as follows The two banner counties united could not fail to exercise a great and powerful influence and I believe, could secure the election of a man whose abilities all admit and whose patriotism and integrity of principle none can deny, and who would shine as a brilliant light among the most brilliant and Pennsylvania would, for once at least, have a representative in the United States Senate of whom she could well be proud'

On the same day which the above appeared in the Commercial, a communication also appeared in the Pittsburgh Gazette, written by an Allegheny man in Washington, in which the writer takes equally strong ground in favor of Mr Stevens—The writer answers the allegation of the editor of the Gazette that Mr Stevens is too old—a ridiculous charge that we exposed the other week On this point he says

I beg you to believe that he is not that 'infirm old man he is so often represented as being In conversation with him a day or two ago I was struck by the vigor of the great commoner,' as he is by so many called His voice is firm his eye is clear and his powers of intellect unabated Men who talk about his physical weakness would be surprised to see how vigorous he is He has as much endurance in him to day as twenty men I could name in the House who have not yet seen their three score years There is nothing in his infirmities which should stand in the way of his election At the last of the session, which closed in dog days he remained at his post twenty four consecutive hours—sometimes now and then a cat nap on a lounge in the House or cloak room, and in the morning walked to his lodgings as smartly as many a young man As leader of the House to day, he is as keen ready alert and full of resources as I have ever seen him In that prime qualification of statesmanship' which you grant him so gracefully and freely he shines pre eminent

After speaking of Mr Stevens' strength in the Legislature which he thinks is superior to that of any of the candidates for the distinction, the writer concludes by saying that he (Mr S) 'is fully up to Allegheny high water mark,' and that 'his election would send a thrill of joy through every patriotic heart in the land, and would be hailed with triumph in both Houses of Congress"

An Old Citizen Plays Pool.

From the Cincinnati Times.

Most everybody knows how to play pool To those who don't know we will state that the game is played on a billiard table, with twenty or thirty balls, each ball numbered A dozen or more can play at the game A certain number is fixed upon, and the player who shall first pocket enough balls, whose combined numbers will amount to it wins the pile—which is made up by the players staking a certain amount before the game commences Previous to the commencement each player draws a marble from a box and puts it out of sight in his pocket These marbles are all numbered to correspond with the numbers on the table The player after receiving his marble bears the number in his mind, and his game is to pocket balls enough the numbers of which added to that on the marble in his pocket, will make the number which wins the pile

The other night one of our oldest citizens, occasionally given to "chance," came home rather late His wife was asleep When she awoke in the morning she found on the floor a marble, upon which was the number '17'

"What's this?" she said to her lord, eyeing the marble suspiciously "It dropped out of your pantaloons pocket What is it?'

Lord opened his eyes, looked, blushed, was confused, and stammered "Why—why—it's a marble, ain't it?"

"Yes," said, she "but what are you doing with a marble in your pocket at your time o' life?"

"In my pocket? Well—ah!—the fact is, I've had that marble in my pocket for the last thirty five years; ever since I used to play for keeps with Bill"

"Indeed?" incredulously asked his wife—'but what are those figures on here for? What does it mean?'

"Mean? 17 mean?' said he hesitatingly, "oh! 17?—why that was the number of marbles Bill owed me when we quit playing, he marked it there so I wouldn't forget it'

The old fellow had a narrow escape, and he hasn't played any pool since.

The St. Anthony Wonder.

From the St Paul Press December 15th.

We publish in another place an account, from the New York Herald, of a most remarkable discovery of pre historic civilization recently made at St Anthony Since the letter to the Herald was written, further explorations and discoveries have been made Just behind the iron plate door, which the correspondent describes as opening a passage way to the river, a solid slab of malachite was found, about eight feet in length by three and a half in width lying flat upon the ground Upon raising this slab another spiral staircase was discovered of precisely one hundred and twenty three steps These steps were of the purest Parian marble polished to a marvelous degree of smoothness while the sides or banisters of the staircase were of shining brass It was found that the descent of these steps, which were each fifteen inches in height, took the explorer down through the mesozoic and caloozoic formations, and almost below the post tertiary periods The hall to which these steps led was of the utmost conceivable grandeur The ceiling which was arched, appeared to be composed of the most brilliant stalactites, although these phenomena have never been found so far below the limestone formation

The more enthusiastic of the first witnesses of these wonders were disposed to consider the stones veritable diamonds and to believe that they had at last found a greater than Golconda, but this idea was summarily suppressed by the older and wiser heads The floor of this apartment was paved with curiously fitting blocks of gold bearing quartz averaging in value from $17 to $500 per ton, the walls were apparently of chony, which, upon closer investigation, proved to be massive bricks of manufactured peat This clearly indicates a degree of former civilization far beyond that of which we have any previous history Ranged around this hall or gallery were numbers of human figures of stalagmite of the size of life sitting upright upon conveniently arranged settees, and to all appearances enjoying themselves In front of each figure was a small round table an object in the shape of a tumbler and another like an ordinary black bottle—all of stone or stalagmite No traces of fire were discovered On one of the fingers of each figure was found a wonderously carved gold ornament octagonal in shape and besides these rings each had bells on its toes This gallery which is large light and well ventilated, is supposed to be the good place where good St Antonians go when they die The explorations are still in progress and we shall record any further wonderful results

Whisky—What Men Drink for Pure Spirits.

From the New York Express.

Since the commencement of the investigation by the Government officers into illicit distillery business some queer revelations have been made in regard to the manufacture of whisky The processes of manufacturing this vile stuff are as various as the quality of the pernicious compound usually found in nine tenths of the bar rooms throughout the city Men have no idea of what they drink under the name of whisky

It is now a matter of impossibility to get a glass of pure whisky or liquor of any kind, even in what considered first class places The illicit distillation of whisky has been carried on since the tax of $2 per gallon put on by the Government by small stills As recently as Tuesday one of the Assessors was informed that some parties were manufacturing it in wash kettles After a few hours search an old woman was found manufacturing what is called potteen in a kettle The compound was sufficient to have poisoned a regiment of men if they had drank enough of it

Potteen or illicit Irish and Scotch whisky, is far famed as an ingredient for making whisky punch or whisky skins The singular flavor of the Irish is supposed to be caused by using turf for the extraction of the malt In making potteen, that distilled from pure malt is considered superior to that made from a mixture of malt and raw grain To assign a reason for this would require an analysis of the process of malting, but it may be observed that the effects of the malting process are similar to those the grain undergoes in the course of vegetation, when sown in the ground The constituents or elements of this whisky are alcohol, pelargonic ether, ascetic ether, fusil oil and pyroligneous acid (crude creosote) Whisky owes its flavor to pelargonic ether, which is nearly identical with oenanthic ether The smoky taste apparent in Scotch whisky is imparted by pyroligneous acid and is usually imitated by adding a small quantity of creosote dissolved in acetic ether

The manufacturer subsequently, not content with making a respectable imitation of the genuine liquor from raw spirits and inoffensive flowers, must needs reduce the alcohol so much by the addition of water that it becomes necessary to resort to the alteration of giving the spirit a fictitious strength by the addition of Guinea pepper, pillitory, or grains of Paradise This method of adulteration imparts a burning taste to the spirit, which by the ignorant is considered an evidence of strength By this means the dealer makes fifty gallons of imitation alcohol out of twenty five gallons of genuine, by adding to the latter twenty five gallons of water, charged with Guinea pepper, etc, and mixing in a sufficient bedding The receipt usually used is as follows

To 40 gallons common whisky add
30 gallons water
5 gallons tincture Guinea pepper
1 quart tincture of kelliitory
2 ounces acetic ether
1½ gallons strong tea

To improve the flavor of this whisky, add three ounces pulverized charcoal and four ounces ground rice into ½ gallon of spirits letting it stand for a week, and stirring it every day

There were three illicit distilleries seized yesterday and last evening but the locations were not given at the Collector's office

The Collapse of Crinoline.

From the New York Times

No one who promenades Broadway now a days will doubt that the long foretold, long delayed 'collapse of crinoline' has at last come to pass It is visible to the most careless observer, and has proof in our most fashionable ladies as they march along" The immense circumference of skirt and sweep of train that came in vogue a dozen years ago and have been expanding and lengthening ever since until recently are now things of the past In their stead masculine eyes are now gratified by neat, trim dresses at once moderate in size, gracefully brief and pre eminently present We believe that those who have experience in such matters, or make them a study, admit that, in point of taste convenience and comfort, the present style is far superior to that which it has superseded, and it is said that in the estimation of ladies there are still other considerations favorable to the diminution of scope that has taken place But these are mysteries beyond newspaper ken and not to be spoken of lightly by the uninitiated It would be madness to hazard an opinion as to how long the new order of things will remain supreme—But we expect, long ere we die to behold again in Broadway the flowing immensities of feminine glory which have appeared and reappeared in every generation since the mighty Rhea strode through the world in her gigantic pondorosity

Fatal Result of a Rat Bite.

From the Richmond Times

A most revolting instance of maternal neglect occurred in the neighborhood of Old Market a few nights since, whereby a negro infant lost its life from a rat bite On the evening in question the mother of the child went below stairs to participate in a negro ball, leaving her offspring in the sleeping room above Shortly afterwards the screams of the infant attracted attention, and upon examination it was found that the helpless child, who was only a few weeks old had been attacked by rats and bitten horribly about the mouth and nose. Restoratives were administered and the little creature soothed to sleep, after which the mother rejoined the bacchanalian party, where she remained until the ball broke up without further interruption On entering her room, at the close of the festivities, she was greeted with a sight of the most sickening character There lay upon a pallet the child cold in death, with half its face eaten away, its hands gnawed to the bone, and one of its ears entirely gone Such instances of culpable neglect on the part of negroes are not of unfrequent occurrence.

NEW YORK, Dec. 23.

There is nothing new in the morning papers.

A ship arrived yesterday reports having sighted one of the contestant yachts at daybreak on December 15th, twenty miles east of George's Shoals. Her signal could not be made out.

The committee for the investigation of frauds in the revenue department have adjourned, not to reassemble until after the holidays. Developments so far more than fulfil the promise of those who investigated.

The investigating committee have learned of gigantic frauds having been practiced in New York, and Government officials are implicated. They have discovered that there are over 3,000 small distilleries carried on in the city in cellars and outhouses of private dwellings, where whisky is made for the purpose of evading the tax of two dollars per gallon.

The committee will visit the principal cities of the West when they have concluded their work in New York. The magnitude of the leak they are endeavoring to stop may be judged from the fact that, according to the census of 1860, the amount of whisky made in the United States was upwards of 90,000,000 gallons, and by the last report of the Revenue Commissioners it is less than 10,000,000.

The steamer Corsica arrived this morning and brings Vera Cruz dates to the 8th, and from the City of Mexico to the 2d. The news confirms the issuing of a proclamation of Maximilian that he will remain in Mexico. The general impression in Mexico was that Maximilian would go as soon as he could, and it is asserted that a portion of his baggage has arrived at Havana.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

PETROLEUM MARKETS.

OFFICE OF THE MORNING HERALD, TITUSVILLE, December 22.

The Petroleum Market for the past twenty-four hours has been firm, with an ordinary amount of activity. The quiet state of the market has been caused by the margin between the views of producers and buyers. The producers are generally holding at from five to ten cents above the offers of buyers, and neither of the parties seem willing to make any concessions. On Benneheff Run $1 75 was freely offered for 47 gr., oil, and on Pioneer Run $1 80 was offered for 47 gr., oil at the wells but was refused.

The following sales were reported to-day: 2,000 barrels at the wells near Petroleum Centre for the New York market, 47 gr., at $1 92 at the wells; 50 barrels on Pioneer Run for the New York market, 44 gr., at $2 10 at the wells; 50 barrels on Pioneer Run for the New York market, 46 gr., at $1 80 at the wells; 600 barrels on the Stevenson Farm for the Cleveland market on private terms; two car loads on Pioneer for the Cleveland market at $1 80 on the cars. There were several other transactions on private terms.

Petroleum is held at the following figures: On Pioneer Run for 46 gr. and over at $1 90 delivered on the cars; for 46 gr. and under, delivered on the cars, at $2 25; on Benneheff Run 46 gr. and under $2 20 at the wells; at the wells on Church Run 46 gr. and over $2 40, on the Stevenson Farm 45 gr. and under, $2 15 at the wells; on Bull Run for 46 gr. and over at $1 80 at the wells; for 46 gr. and under $2 00 at the wells; on Benneheff Run for 46 gr and over $1 55 at the wells.

The Methodist Fair.

The second night of the fair was a grand success. The attendance was quite numerous and the tables well patronized. Excellent music was furnished by the Italian band, and the side shows were full of simplicity. The artistic arrangements and decorations were admired by all. The receipts exceeded those of the previous evening. This evening will conclude the entertainment. Those wishing to buy holiday gifts, have a good time, and encourage a laudable enterprise, should visit Corinthian Hall this Christmas evening. Santa Claus will appear to-night coming down the chimney wrapped in furs, and laden with gifts of every style and fancy. Something for each and all.

THE great holiday of the year, the anniversary of the earthly coming of the Saviour, observed in all Christian lands, occurs to-morrow, and the joyous greeting, "A Merry Christmas," will be proclaimed once more from the lips of old and young. The gray haired sire, who has passed the allotted term of life, will again give utterance to the kindly greeting, because closely upon the verge of the broad future beyond, he the more kindly appreciates the event which the day commemorates. Those in prime of life repeat the words, looking forward in hope and back to cherished memory of childhood days. The gay, light-hearted, just entering on life's great responsibilities, but who have not yet tasted its stern trials, take up the note in all that gladness and buoyancy that mark their years. And the little ones, down to the merest prattlers who can just lisp the words, join in to swell the chorus of mirth and joy. Feasting and pleasure, and presents, will be the order of the day. More presents, as tokens of affection and esteem, are given on that day than all the rest of the year; every body, the rich and the poor alike, hold it a pleasure to remember their loved ones and friends on that day. To day will be a busy time in the preparation and selection of these presents. Never have the stores of our city presented a gayer appearance on the approach of the holidays than now, and the variety is so great and the stocks so large, that there is no fear but all can find just what they want, at some one of the places advertised in our columns. Let the reader scan them carefully, and he will find a never-failing directory for the transactions of the day.

A NARROW ESCAPE.—Our fellow townsman, Mr. C. M. Wheeler, had a narrow escape from a most shocking death on Friday evening at six o'clock. He was stooping toward the base of an upright shaft in the new machine shop of Gibbs, Wheeler & Co., when the skirts of his overcoat were caught by the set screws and rapidly wound up, drawing Mr. W. close to the shaft. It stood within about nine inches of the wall, and had his body been drawn in between it would have been literally torn to pieces. Fortunately there were several men standing near, and an effort was instantly made to stop the wheel. Before this was effected, however, Mr. Wheeler's clothes were almost entirely stripped from his person. None of his limbs were broken, although he was severely wrenched by the struggle, and has since been confined to his bed. It was an exceedingly narrow escape from a most horrible death.

A CARD.—The Rev. Nap. Mignault at length has it in his power to make public the following account of money received and expended at the late Catholic Fair:

|---|---|
| Received from all sources | $3,160 00 |
| Expenses of the fair | 800 00 |
| Net proceeds | 2,360 00 |

Considering the number of fairs which were to follow this one, and the scarcity of money, the Rev. N. Mignault feels himself justified in pronouncing the result surprising. He regards it as a decisive proof of the liberality of the citizens of Titusville and vicinity. The success of the fair is chiefly attributed to the ladies of the various tables, whose patience, energy and self-sacrificing spirit deserve the highest encomiums. To them, therefore, as well as to our patrons and benefactors, the kind votes of the polls, to C. Castle for his generous donation of a gold watch and chain, the good Sisters of Charity and pupils of their academy, the Committees of arrangements and decorations—to these, as well as to all who co-operated in the work, in language very inadequately expressing his sentiments, the Rev. Nap. Mignault tenders his heartfelt thanks.

MIDNIGHT MASS will be held in St. Titus Church, beginning at half-past eleven o'clock to-night. The bells will chime at that hour, ushering in the Christmas anniversary.

Religious services will also be held on Tuesday morning, at 8 and 10½ o'clock a. m. and 7 p. m., in the same church.

ST. JAMES MEMORIAL CHURCH.—This church will be open for divine service this (Monday) evening, December 24.

FLOUR, OATS AND PROVISIONS.—A decline of $2 per barrel on flour from former prices, and provisions in proportion, at Haight, Archer & Co.'s.

Torpedoes in Court—Alleged Frauds Exposed at Petroleum Centre.

BEFORE JUDGE DONAGHY, DEC. 15, 1866.

Reported for the Morning Herald.

Professor Alex. Hamar vs. W. G. Cooke.—Plaintiff seeks to recover $60 on a due bill and $10 on an account. Wm. T. Graham, counsel for plaintiff, producing a due-bill, called defendant, and asked him if the signature was his. Defendant being sworn, admits the signature. Ira H. Pierce, counsel for defendant, objects to the bill as inadmissable, owing to the fact of the revenue stamp having been affixed since the bill was given and after the summons in this case was issued, and showing the mode in which a stamp should have been affixed in the presence of the Collector of Internal Revenue. The Justice admitted the objection as well taken. The counsel then waived his objection, stating that he had made the point simply to show he could here have terminated the proceedings, but as he preferred the merits of the case, as it was an important one for oil operators, should be gone into, he would withdraw the objection, and admit the piece of paper as evidence of the defendant at the time he signed the due-bill, believing that amount was due to plaintiff for a torpedo.

W. T. Graham then continued to examine defendant, and proved plaintiff had returned a counterfeit ten dollar bill to defendant representing it as being part of one hundred dollars the defendant had paid to plaintiff, on account of some torpedo, and at this point plaintiff's counsel rested his case.

Ira H. Pierce now proceeded to call defendant, as witness in his own case. This was objected to by W. T. Graham. Counsel for defendant, however, adduced a recent decision, which established the right claimed by Mr. Pierce. The witness having been called by the plaintiff, he was now a competent witness. On examination, Mr. Cook said the due-bill was part consideration for a torpedo that had been exploded in his well; said torpedo was alleged to have been charged with "nitro chlor," and this explosive was advertised by the plaintiff as one thousand times more powerful than gunpowder, and one hundred and sixty times more effective than nitro glycerine. That Prof. Hamar represented himself as a military engineer, familiar with operations of blasting; a chemist of first rate attainments, and the sole manufacturer of "nitro chlor" at his works on Sugar Creek. Believing the Professor's assertions, he had paid him $100 in currency and given him a due-bill for $60 on the day the torpedo was exploded, but on discovering the case of the torpedo was of wrought iron which was an eminently improper material for that purpose, and believing that "nitro chlor" was nitro glycerine, and knowing that the damage done to him amounted to at least $150, he now resisted payment of the bill, and sought for repayment of the money he had paid plaintiff. Would not have allowed a wrought iron torpedo to be put in his well had he known it.

Levi Mason sworn—Was agent of the plaintiff at the time this torpedo was exploded; the case was made of wrought iron casing pipe about three inches in diameter, and was used because plaintiff had no cast iron cases at the time. Plaintiff said in reply to witnesses remarks, about using wrought iron, the oil men could not tell the difference. The article it was filled with was stated by the plaintiff to be nitro chlor, manufactured by himself; that it would not explode under 1,100° Fehrenheit; that 1 lb was equal to 175 pounds of nitro glycerine; that it would not explode by concussion, and that plaintiff manufactured it himself at a factory on Sugar Creek. Witness brought the article from Sugar Creek; it was contained in tin cans, and these were packed in cases of German white-wood, fastened by wrought wire nails, such as German packing cases are always nailed with. Its color was a light yellow; it became solid at 44° and had the same density as nitro glycerine, and in every respect resembled the nitro glycerin which I have procured from G. M. Mowbray's laboratory in Titusville, and from Col. Roberts' magazine on Trout Run. It explodes by concussion, precisely similar to nitro glycerine. Wrought iron tubing for a casing is a very bad material; it requires from ten to twelve days to cut it up after the explosion. A cast iron casing would be cut up, owing to its brittle nature, in two to four days. The wrought iron would probably split and become bedded in the sides of the well, out of reach of the drilling tools, and thus close the crevices of the well. I was directed by Mr. Hamar to pour tallow melted into torpedoes before filling them, to close any leaky joints or pin holes in the metal; this torpedo was so lined. Am satisfied from experiments I have made that the material advertised by professor Hamar as nitro chlor is really nitro glycerine. Witness then gave numerous instances of successful explosions effected by using cast iron cases and nitro glycerine as the explosive material. Witness was severely cross-examined by W. T. Graham, but his evidence remained unshaken.

Mr. Fox (former Superintendent of the Central Petroleum Company) sworn—This witness gave detailed estimates of the loss occasioned in fuel, labor, etc., when wrought iron was used in lieu of cast iron.

Col. Roberts sworn—Am patentee of Roberts' Torpedo. In my application in 1864 for a patent I stated that I preferred to use glass or cast iron. Mr. Hamar advertises that he uses nitro chlor, and that it was 160 times more powerful than nitro glycerine. Have tested the article represented by Prof. Hamar to be nitro chlor, and find that it is nitro glycerine.

I procured some of Hamar's material that he called nitro chlor, both from him and his agent; submitted it to the following test: Burned it in the open air on paper; it burned like refined oil, without explosion; its color was a light yellow; its gravity 1,800; it congealed at about 44 degrees; it gives a severe headache, like nitro-glycerine, it exploded under the hammer on an anvil like nitro-glycerine; I compared its explosive power with some nitro glycerine of my own manufacture and found them equal. Professor Seeley, of New York, repeated the same test, and he was of the same opinion as myself—without a doubt that it was nitro-glycerine.

Various drillers were called, who proved the damage incurred by using wrought-iron cases in lieu of cast iron for torpedo explosions.

Geo. M. Mowbray called on as an expert and sworn—Have been for eighteen years of my life a manufacturing and analytical chemist. The term nitro-chlor is the German name for Chloride of Nitrogen. This article was discovered by Dulong in 1812; it is prepared by filling a glass globe with a perfectly saturated solution of Muriate of Ammonia, (Salammoniac) and afterwards inverting the glass globe in a barrel filled with the same liquid, and then passing (from a retort with a bent beak) through the liquid, gaseous chlorine. As the gas becomes absorbed oily drops form on the surface; these gradually unite and drop to the bottom of the solution, forming a heavy oily liquid of a dark yellow color, orange color in fact. This heavy liquid evaporates readily, stings the eyes and has a specific gravity, water being 1,000 at 1,600. about. It does not solidify at 10 degrees below zero, and explodes between 150 degrees and 212 degrees Fehrenheit. Dulong mutilated his hand in his experiments with very minute quantities. Sir Humphrey Davy was seriously injured, although only experimenting with a drop the size of a millet seed. A mask with plate-glass sights was smashed, although every conceivable precaution was used. Touched on blotting paper and brought to a flame, Chloride of Nitrogen explodes with a noise like a pistol. Nitro-glycerin, in a like experiment, burns as if moistened with Petroleum. Chloride of Nitrogen explodes by allowing olive oil or turpentine to touch it; a quantity as much as a mustard spoon will contain, placed in a coffee cup and covered with water, and then an iron rod dipped in olive oil allowed to touch the compound underneath the water, will drive the bottom of the cup into a pine board.

In 1836 Mr. Pepper, then experimental chemist at the Polytechnic Institute, London, prepared a small quantity, about three ounces, but the explosion of a very small quantity decided him to throw it away, as entirely too dangerous. With every precaution to experiment with, no chemist has ever manufactured twelve pounds of this material in my opinion, nor have twelve ounces ever been collected in one quantity since it was discovered. It would be exploded by contact with fatty acids, such as constitute melted tallow. Its color, dark orange, its stinging smell, and not being so heavy as nitro glycerine, and its exploding with noise when inflamed on blotting paper, instead of burning quietly as is the case with nitro glycerine, clearly prove the article used by Mr. Mason, was not "nitro chlor," and I think the most charitable inference is, to consider that Mr. Hamar, relying on well operators being engaged in a more profitable occupation than chemistry, described and assumed to use an article which any one sending to procure, would discover was too formidable even for a Yankee chemist to manufacture by the gallon, and required a Crimean warrior with a laboratory on Sugar Creek, to produce.

Mr. Pierce then addressed the Court, and after submitting that Professor Hamar was leading the oil operators into possible heavy damages for infringement of other men' patented rights, commented on the evidence; maintained that here, instead of ordinary intelligence, gross and intentional fraud had been committed, knowing that it would cost $50 to $300 to chip up the casing; yet his cupidity was such, his disregard of his duty was so gross, rather than lose a customer, or tell him he could not supply him for a few days, he puts in a wrought iron case, relying on the chance that the torpedo could be slipped into the well without the deception being discovered. For this fraud he now asked payment, for doing this damage he now demands pay, for ruining this man's well he asks more money, on the confident belief, doubtless, that defendant won't be able to tell the difference, that being the unprincipled principle of this Professor of Military Engineering. Had we chosen, we could have sent this Professor to the right-about by objecting, on technical grounds, to the note he brought in evidence, but we prefer to let all the facts come out, expose the rascality and fraud of this "Nitro-cloe" vendor, and set him up as a scarecrow to the oil operators on this Creek and Sugar Creek as well.

No reasonable being doubts, after the evidence given here, but that nitro glycerine was substituted for the article that was promised and advertised. There was a fraud; but when Mr. Hamar orders his agent to put down a wrought iron case, he (Hamar) knowing the consequences, relieves my client from every obligation of payment, for Hamar knows such a material ought not to be used; yet the pretended expert uses it. Such military engineering may have passed at Sebastopol, if he ever was there; he must pardon my inuendo, for when a man who is to be paid $150 for twelve pound nitro chlor and a cast iron case to put it in, sends three feet of three inch tubing in lieu of cast iron, knowing it will cost his customer $250 extra, yet does it because they won't know the difference, let me tell him that is such an unprincipled act that I am bound to regard his assertions of the Crimea and Military Superintendent equally fraudulent, for no soldier, unless a deserting bounty jumper, would be guilty of such deception, simply because his customers don't know the difference. Your Honor will instruct this man there is a difference between honest dealing and fraud, a difference in this case of $150.

Mr. Graham, counsel for the plaintiff, argued at great length, stating that Prof. Hamar was one of the greatest inventors of the age, or to quote the language of his circular, "formerly chief mining engineer of the foreign legion of the English army before Sebastopol, late chief mining engineer of the corps employed by the Austrian government for opening the navigation of the river Danube," &c., and his torpedo invention would inevitably blow up all competition in that line of business, or words to that effect.

The following is the decision of Judge Donaghy:

"After hearing the proofs and allegations of the parties and the arguments of counsel, I enter judgment in favor of the defendant, and against the plaintiff in the sum of ninety dollars and costs of suit. THOMAS DONAGHY."

HARPER FOR JANUARY.—The January number of Harper's Monthly is the best for a long time; that is, it has an unusually interesting list of contents. Among them are: At the Area Gate—a deeply suggestive poem; Yvon and Finette, one of Laboulaye's fairy tales; Heroic Deeds of Heroic Men, giving an account of the escape of Messrs. (we use this word in place of the proper military title, which in the record skips around promiscuously from Lieutenant to Colonel) Hurd, Murphy, and Raynor, from Libby Prison in '61; Porte Crayon's Personal Reconllections of the War; an illustrated article on London Police Court; Mr. Harrington's Virginians in Texas; Three Days of Terror, a vivid personal sketch of the draft riots in New York; a curious article on Medical Delusions in Olden Times; and other if not quite equal interest. Harper opens the New Year in fine style. WINTER, the great necessitator of overcoats, called around yesterday and issued a manifesto for an immediate supply. Not knowing where they were to be found in all the latest styles, he called on us, of the news, to give information relative to the same, whereupon we advised him to go to John J. Carter's on Franklin street, who is ready and is now offering his overcoat stock at cost—or New York wholesale prices; and as the stock is fast being depleted by the public, who are anxious to fit themselves out for the coming New Year, we enjoined friend Winter and all his tribe to call immediately. Winter being a curious chap and one who tarries when he comes, at all times, wished us to inform him where he could dress up his boys in "Christmas toggery?" Of course we referred him to Carter's advertisement, which says that children's clothing is to be sold at COST; and we further assured old frosty winter that Carter meant cost when he said it; for as sure as you live, said we, our wife tried Carter's knock down prices and found that not only the prices suited but the children's suits were so nice, that our better half took two without a word—taking care, however, that she paid "stamps," for 'tis said that you cannot get those good things without the "rocks;" and that reminds us that Carter has been receiving lots of nice fixings, that make capital Christmas gifts and New Year's presents, all of which Carter sells cheap, but not at cost. Overcoats and children's clothing only at cost. But he has just received a fine lot of underwear which beat anything in the line of low prices. Just read and grow fat.

COAL REDUCED TO $4 PER TON, NOTWITHSTANDING THE FACT THAT SOME PEOPLE "CAN'T SEE IT."—Bain & Copeland are the sole agents for Spear's Anti-dust Parlor Stoves. Read the following:

☞ I have used one of Spear's Anti-dust Parlor Stoves for two winters and would not be without it. W. S. WINSOR.

☞ The "Anti-dust" Stove will give more heat and consume less coal, and is preferable in every respect to any stove I know of.

C. T. STEELE.

☞ The "Anti-dust" Stove bought from Bain & Copeland suits me far beyond my expectations.

JOS. T. CHASE.

☞ I have never had a stove I liked so well as the "Anti-dust," having thrown out my "Morning Glory" to get one. B. S. HAIGHT.

☞ My stove gives perfect satisfaction.

W. SIMMONS.

☞ I consider Spear's Anti-dust Stove superior to any I have ever used, radiating a large amount of heat with but little fuel.

J. T. BRIGGS.

☞ I consider the Anti-dust stove a most excellent institution. In the use of it there is great economy in fuel, and its healing qualities cannot be excelled. O. J. BENHAM,

FEARFUL RUNAWAY.—The cause of the excitement in the city yesterday we will relate in a few words. And here we give our thanks to the police for their skill in working up the case. We suppress names, as the parties are very respectably connected. The affair occurred on Saturday last, a little before four o'clock p. m.; it might have been a little later. The horses were a matched bay team, drawing an elegant sleigh, with robes and bells, and the parties were a dashing young man and a lovely young lady of some eighteen summers. Even at Crisp's corner every body looked at them, but they came down Spring street at headlong speed. A well known oil operator made a rush at the horses' heads, but it was all in vain—the lady almost frightened with fear as the teams dashed round the corner of Franklin street and came to a dead halt in front of Livingston & Guild's fish and oyster depot, Petroleum Bank Block.

The young man, as it turned out had heard that Livingston and Guild had just their holiday stock of XXX oysters and the young lady would give him no peace until he had got some for Christmas and New Years. It was an affective scene. A vast crowd assembled without and helped carry the XXX oysters to the sleigh. They all joined in the chorus, "We never saw choicer brands of oysters"

Sing oysters, O!

OLDE ARMS.—To the ladies and gentlemen of Titusville and surrounding country.—I have been burned out three times in Titusville, and my late losses compelled me to close business. I have now formed a partnership in my old business with Mr. J. M. Guild and we have opened an oyster and fish depot on Franklin street, in the Petroleum Bank Block, two doors north from the Titusville Mills at the stand known formerly as Fortune & Co.'s produce and oyster depot. Thankful for past patronage we respectfully solicit a continuance of the same from old friends and new

LIVINGSTON & GUILD.

Titusville, Dec. 21, 1866.

WINSOR sells best delaines at 20 cents per yard. They can be had by the single yard, by the piece, by the case, or by the cord at that price. They are not remnants merely.

NO SCRAPE IT—If you want good flour, warranted to give perfect satisfaction, you can find it at H. L. Hershberg & Co's, every time. If the flour is not satisfactory you can have your money refunded.

I DON'T SPOIL GAS—But I do sell full measure oil for fifty cents per gallon and don't need watching by my customers. Remember, I have no short measure at forty five cents, or less. Look out for men on Spring street, with defective measures in carpet-bag, and for fear of exposure, inviting the public to bring their own measures. The United States brand is always O. K. There's no discount on Uncle Sam. E. RATH.

N. B—My oil is non explosive, and there'll be no more fires on Franklin street.

GREAT FIRE IN TITUSVILLE!—Man seen on a dead run with a black carpet bag labeled U. S.; last seen of him was on Franklin street, leaving far that large gallon measure, marked "U. S (ain't I honest)."

Bring on your measure and your cans, and if you don't get more oil of Olmsted & Jewhurst for forty-five cents, than you can at the great Emporium of Honesty, dealt out in small quantities, we will make you a present of the oil. Remember, we sell one gallon of oil for forty-five cents, and guarantee the measure. No gift letters. OLMSTED & JEWHURST.

N. B.—We don't burn gas

THAT BREAK DOWN in the Jamestown Store is in the price of goods only. You can find the largest and choicest stock of goods in Western Pennsylvania, most of which have been bought within the past week, and consequently since the great reduction of prices in New York, all of which will be sold forty per cent. lower than can be had elsewhere.

HOLIDAY GIFTS.—If you want a suitable gift to send home for a Christmas or New Year's present, don't forget to call at Mather's Photograph Room, where you can get a Stereoscopic View of any point in the oil regions.

COAL.—After an experiment with Anstie-Duster, Spear's Patent Stove, there are some parties in this city that have found that the price of coal is not $4 per ton, for the coal dealers still continue to insist that they must have an eleven dollar bill for a ton of A No. coal.—Stoves are decidedly cheap this year. We don't intend to sell stoves at cost, but will sell ten per cent. cheaper than any other parties in the city who propose to sell at cost. F. H. EDDY & CO.

NOV. 20, 1866.

I have in use two "Oriental Stoves," and after comparing them with many others I have tried I am of the opinion I can have the same amount of heat with one half the coal and they take less time to keep in order for burning. O. KASER.

November 19, 1866.

FRIEND EDDY: I purchased, about two years since, two of the "Oriental Stoves," one for our store in New York and one for Titusville, and will say for warmth, economy and durability, it excels any stove I ever used, and assure all of my friends who want to purchase an "Oriental" that they will not be disappointed.

CHARLES S. ARCHER.

I HAVE used in my house for one year the "Oriental Stove" and it has given perfect satisfaction.

Having been overpersuaded to try one of "Spear's Anti-dusters," and after giving it a fair test, I am fully convinced that it bears no comparison to the "Oriental." In fact, it is, in my opinion, an extravagant and almost worthless piece of furniture. CLARK EWING.

I HAVE used two of the "Oriental Stoves" in my hotel for one year with perfect satisfaction one in the office and one smaller size in the sitting-room, and I think for economy and convenience they cannot be surpassed. J. C. PENDLETON.

MESSRS. F. H. EDDY & CO.: I have used an "Oriental" in my house for about a month and am very much pleased with it. A fire was kindled in it when I first got it, which has never gone out. It gives but little trouble, needs replenishing but once in twenty-four hours and gives just as much or just as little heat as we require. I think it may be fairly termed an "Anti-duster," for it makes no dust; but my coal costs eleven dollars and one-half a ton in spite of all I can do. Respectfully yours, CHAS. H. SMITH.

TITUSVILLE, Nov. 19th, 1866.

F. H. EDDY & CO.—Gents: I can cheerfully recommend your "Oriental." From actual experience I can safely say it makes the most cheerful fire, uses the least coal and gives MORE heat, than any stove I ever saw or used, and is certainly the most economical. Yours truly, E. C. SANDERSON.

MESSRS F. H. EDDY & CO.—I have used the "Oriental" the last year and think it the best coal stove in use. I have one of the "Anti dusters." It is a good stove, but no comparison to the "Oriental" in comfort, durability and economy. I would not part with the "Oriental" on any consideration. Z. MARTIN.

MESSRS. F. H. EDDY & CO.—Gents: I have used two of your "Oriental Stoves" for over one year, and they have given perfect satisfaction in every respect. I cheerfully endorse them as A No. 1 stoves.

Yours truly, J. J. MCCRUM.

MESSRS. F. H. EDDY & CO.—Gents: I purchased of you over a year ago one of the "Oriental Stoves," size No. 11, and have used it constantly, when the weather required, ever since. I must say that it has more than fulfilled my expectations. For economy, convenience and cheerfulness it is the best stove in the whole country. I kept my room warmed all through last winter with a smaller amount of coal than ever before and the fire did not go out but twice during the whole winter.

Yours truly, ALFRED W. COBURN.

Titusville, Nov. 13th, 1866.

MESSRS. F. H. EDDY & CO.—Gents: After some persuasion on the part of many of our friends we were induced to try one of the "Oriental Stoves," and accordingly ordered one of you, size No. 12. We find it to rather exceed the high encomiums pronounced by our friends. The heat with a small fire was an intense system today that we were actually driven out. We think we shall have to change it for one of the small size.

Yours truly, CASTLE BROS.

Titusville, Nov. 19, 1866.

WE are using an "Oriental Stove" in our office and are very much pleased with it; we think it the pleasantest and most economical stove that we have ever used and would recommend it to all our friends who want the best stove. GIBBS, WHEELER & RUSSELL.

I HAVE used for the past year, in my house at Jamestown, one of "Spear's Anti dust Coal Stoves" and an "Oriental Coal Stove" and found from actual experience that the "Oriental Stove" of same size, consumes at least one-third less coal and gives more heat than the "Anti-duster." The "Anti-duster" was a good stove until I got an "Oriental," when I found that it was of no account by the side of the "Oriental." The difference between the two kinds of stove is simply this: That the "Oriental" runs itself and requires but little coal and will keep constant and steady fire for months, while the Anti-duster requires constant care, frequent replenishing of fuel, gives an uneven heat and consumes considerably more coal, and will get clogged up and go out and has to be tended with as much care as a baby. I have thrown out the "Anti-duster" and given it away and put up an "Oriental" in its place and have made money in the operation. C. H. ARPS.

A CARD.—The firm of Ross & Ford having dissolved, the undersigned would respectfully announce that he may now be found at the extensive Furniture Emporium of S. J.
